

Fresh Results, LLC to be Featured on Upcoming Episode of DMG's American Farmer TV Series

Supplying the U.S. with Year-Round Blueberry Production

Sunrise, FL, September 14, 2011 --(PR.com)-- Fresh Results, LLC, is pleased to announce their participation in the American Farmer series, due to air this Fall 2011. Dates and show times to be announced.

Fresh Results is one of the largest blueberry marketers in the world. They have been a preferred vendor for some of the top retailers in North America for more than 10 years.

With their farm in Argentina being the largest single producer of blueberries in the Southern Hemisphere, Fresh Results is responsible for nearly 20% of all the fresh blueberries arriving to the U.S. from September to mid-December.

This episode is dedicated entirely to one of nature's near perfect foods, the blueberry. The episode will highlight the popular berry's health and nutritional benefits. To better understand what goes into blueberry production, American Farmer will travel to Fresh Results' farm in Argentina. Here, we will explore hot topics such as: vertical integration, genetic modification, food safety, and meeting year-round global food demands.

"Fresh Results is engaged in an ongoing effort to publicize the incredible health benefits, year round availability and extensive ways to consume this super fruit to a global audience," said Eric Crawford, President of Fresh Results, LLC.

"Our nation is very confused when it comes to nutrition, but really, it just comes down to the basics. You simply cannot go wrong with fresh fruit and vegetables," said Shirley White, producer for the series. "We are excited to share Fresh Results' story. Teeming with antioxidants and nutrition, anyone could benefit from eating a daily handful. Fresh Results makes that possible with year-round production."
